Origins and Context of New Documents 1967

The Cultural and Photographic Climate of the 1960s

The mid-20th century was a period of profound social upheaval in the United States. Civil rights movements, anti-war protests, urbanization, and shifting cultural norms created a fertile ground for artists seeking to capture authentic snapshots of American life. Photography, already established as a potent documentary tool, evolved into a means of revealing the complexities of identity, class, race, and social change.

During this era, the New York School of Photography, led by figures such as Robert Frank and Robert Adams, emphasized candidness, spontaneity, and an engagement with everyday life. It was within this fertile environment that the New Documents exhibition and publication emerged, aiming to showcase three distinct yet interconnected visions of American society.

The Genesis of the New Documents Exhibition

In 1967, the Museum of Modern Art (MoMA) in New York organized the New Documents exhibition, curated by John Szarkowski—a pivotal figure in shaping modern photography discourse. The exhibition aimed to present a new generation of photographers whose work diverged from traditional, posed portraiture and studio work, favoring raw, unfiltered depictions of contemporary life.
